AMAZONIAN PRIZE-FIGHT.
The Women Matched for $50 a Side—Several Rounds Fought—
The Crowd Interfered, and a General Melee Ensued.

The latest sensation in the delectable
 section of our city dominated South Brooklyn, which is usually fertile in murders, rowdy affairs, pugilistic encounters,
 and unbridled eruptions of all sorts, occurred yesterday afternoon.

The women residing in the section in question (more especially those of Mexican extraction) are, as every one knows, composed of no gentle elements, and make up for the lack of the purring softness and docility of the fairer sex.

It is perfectly manifest that the road,
 when built, will at once rank with the most important roads in the country. All the business of the city will be done on the city and other corporations which are deeply interested in the scheme, and the private individuals who know that the road will be a great benefit to the city.

The Fall Coal Trade.
 The anthracite coal trade slackened off
 a little last week, though the concerted effort started in this city to effect an entire stoppage of the trade has been of short duration.

NEW YORK, Sept. 19, 1867.—The following letter was written by Gen. ant yesterday:

REPRESENTATIVES AMONG US STATES,) WASHINGTON, Sept. 18, 1867.)
SIR:—John Dettley, Captain ex-soldier of California Union.

General Grant desires me to acknowledge the receipt of your invitation to be present at a National Convention of soldiers and sailors to be held at Pittsburg, California, September 25, 1867, for political purposes.

I instructs me to say that it is considered inadvisable to his convictions to attend, and he desires me to inform you to attend, please, for whatever, and that he sees with regret the action of any officer of the army in attending such a political demonstration of the kind.

Very respectfully,
JOHN D. BAEDEL.

history of an extra "Poor People's" in 1860 the widow of a poor Protestant clergyman, named Heald. He lived in a small town of Lebanon, in Connecticut. He had a wife and a young son. One night an officer passed through on his way to the army. He asked a soldier to go with him to the post to obtain news. He applied in vain at several houses, it was not long until he reached the clergyman's house, where he at last obtained a dish of hock. It greatly comforted the weary soldier, and he returned to the post, where he offered her money for her pain. She declined accepting money. He remembered the name of the poor soldier, and he made a clock reckoned to be $61.00. He made the widow accept of the money, and the clock was sold for 100 remained forgotten in a drawer; children had so often played with it, that they had broken it. The number, which drew the capital was repeatedly announced in the newspaper, and the clock was sold for $100.00. One day a gentleman happened to enter her house, and saw the clock. He was struck by the glass and frame of a looking-glass curiously at it, and was amazed to find that it was the number of the ticket, which had drawn the capital in the clock-lottery. The

St. Louis, Sept. 19.

The prize fight between Wm. M. Davis and McGoole, for a hundred dollars, and a Champion's p. Champion's belt, took place on Chicago, about ten miles above the city, at an hour when the spectators in the boats took spectators to the field. In a seconds were Palsey Cirina and McKenney and Ned Shaw. Unpleasant Curry, Sherman Thurston, Referee. Thirty-five rounds were fought in thirty minutes, when Davis's second was terribly punished, while McGoole was not much hurt. McGoole got up, and was taken to the hospital on a stretcher, and had it pretty much on his way from the start. Davis acknowledged his defeat at the end of the fight, and continued in the solicitation of his friends for two hundred and fifty dollars made up for Davis McGoole's loss, with a subscription of fifty dollars from sporting characters, from Chicago, Cincinnati, Cleveland, St. Louis, St. Paul, and other places, were present.
